1.01 INSTRUCTOR INFORMATION

COURSE TA: Kimberly Abbott
Online Office Hours: TBD

1.02 COURSE OVERVIEW

The main question of the course asks: How do the world's diverse peoples develop unique strategies for living in an ever-changing world? As humans, we are part of an intriguing species that strives to tackle universal bio-social concerns, such as giving birth, finding mates, and establishing security in creative and local ways. The way that we manage our livelihoods in our towns and cities unleashes a cascade of interesting global connections, effects, and relationships which can (for example) impact the ways that people in Indonesia find work, or where those in Hawaii decide to settle down.

This class is arranged differently than many other online classes. You will earn your grade in the course through careful and consistent participation in weekly class activities and the completion of a multi-step term paper project. These assignments will require foresight and planning. Most weeks include a short reading quiz and a unique activity based on a case study. This can be contrasted with other class models which teach students through more passive tools such as taped lectures or comprehensive tests.

Students progress through the course by moving through 12 interrelated modules. Each module is built around a core anthropological question and one or two key concepts in anthropology which have been used to answer this question, as presented in select articles and videos for the week. Each week students will investigate new real-life case studies, such as transnational adoption agencies in Guatemala, temporality and futures in Haiti, security in Peru, matchmaking in China, and international exchanges on YouTube (among others).

The weekly course topics are grouped into three large sections that roughly parallel life stages, beginning with the “Life Basics” of birth, enculturation, diets, bodies, and temporality; moving on to “Intermediary Skills” like security, communication, mating, and growing up; and concluding with projects of “Letting Go” such as migration, object disposal, mortuary practices, and the place of the dead in society. Each week students will read scholarly literature, view the video lectures, and learn a new case study.

1.03 PREREQUISITES

All majors are welcome in this course. The prerequisite requirement is the successful completion of at least one ANT 2000 or 3000 level course.

1.04 COURSE OBJECTIVES

By the end of this class it is expected that students will be able to:

1. Analyze and explain the diverse strategies humans use to approach bio-social problems at the local level, and the relationship between their social shaping, historical development, and trans-local effects
2. Use a network approach to critically analyze their own social worlds and life strategies
3. Explain how anthropologists study and theorize emergent social problems and the creative strategies societies develop to solve them
4. Develop critical cultural anthropological thinking, reading, and writing skills.

1.07 CONTACTING THE INSTRUCTOR

For issues specific to a student's grade or performance in the course you should contact the instructor directly through Canvas, using Canvas Inbox. Office hours will be held online through Canvas. Although I will normally get back with you the same day, please allow for a 24-48 hour response time on emails. More general questions can and should be posted to the discussion board.

1.08 ASKING QUESTIONS ABOUT COURSE AND ASSIGNMENTS

The course discussion board is a convenient place for students to interact with one another, post questions, read common questions and their answers, or to simply meet one another. All questions about the course, course assignments, or course readings should be posted to the discussion board such as: are we supposed to read x? or when is x due? or I don't understand what author x is saying. This excludes any questions which are specific to a student's grade or performance in the course which should be directed to the instructor through Canvas messaging.

Section 2 – COURSE FORMAT

2.01 CANVAS

This course uses Canvas. On Canvas you can find news and updates, the course syllabus, your grades, weekly reading assignments, lecture videos, and discussion boards. You can log in to Canvas at <http://elearning.ufl.edu/>. You are encouraged to make contact with the instructor during virtual office hours if you have any questions. If you encounter any technical problems when logging in or using the E-Learning website contact the UF Helpdesk (helpdesk@ufl.edu or 352 392 4357, select option 2). Students can also find more information on Canvas and the Helpdesk in the Start Here module.

2.02 COURSE REQUIREMENTS AND GRADING

You will be evaluated for proficiency in learning objectives according to the following methods:

1. Syllabus Quiz (3 points)

The syllabus quiz will be used to evaluate your knowledge of the core components of the course, as laid out in the syllabus.

2. Synopsis and Thinking Reading Quizzes (10 points)

Every week you are expected to complete the assigned readings and videos and then move on to the individual Synopsis and Thinking quiz for the module. Most Synopsis and Thinking quizzes involve brief textual responses. These assignments evaluate your comprehension of the primary materials for the week. As the name suggests, you should be thinking about the primary materials and be capable of synthesizing the main points. It is recommended that students complete the Synopsis and Thinking quizzes on Mondays, right after completing readings. Synopsis and Thinking assignments are due each Tuesday by 11:59 pm. Points for Synopsis and Thinking assignments will be assessed weekly by 11:59 pm on Friday.

3. Case Studies and Explore Activities (8 points)

Each week you will be presented with a new ethnographic case study which is relevant to the Module's central question or theme. This case study will be in the form of text, video, and/or other multimedia resources outlined in the individual Explore assignment for the week. You are expected to explore the case study resources and apply your new knowledge of the primary lesson in order to better understand the case study. Each Explore exercise is different inviting you to creatively and critically engage with the particular anthropological question for the module as it is being played out today in the contemporary case study. It is recommended that students complete Explore assignments on Tuesdays, right after completing case study readings. Explore assignments are due each Thursday at 11:59 pm.

4. Ethnographic Paper (140 points)

The final 3000 to 5000 word ethnographic paper will cover your own original ethnographic research and the conclusions you have drawn from the research at your chosen site, directly interacting with specific course concepts and questions which you have been most interested in throughout the duration of the course. In order to keep you on track in your ethnography, the project is broken down into 4 segments.

A. Research Question (16 points)

DUE FRIDAY FEBRUARY 8th BY 11:59 PM

By Week 5 (Module 4) students will have worked in tandem with the instructor to develop an acceptable research question relating to a physical site that the student would like to ethnographically investigate for their final project.

Research Question points will be assessed by Friday February 15th at 11:59 pm.

B. Research Proposal (18 points)

DUE FRIDAY FEBRUARY 22nd BY 11:59 PM

In lieu of the Explore assignment for Week 7 (Module 6) students will turn in a research proposal of between 300 and 600 words which outlines the key literature, methods, timeline, and mode of analysis that students will use in developing their ethnography.

Research Proposal points will be assessed by Friday March 1st at 11:59 pm.

C. Rough Draft (26 points)

DUE FRIDAY MARCH 15th BY 11:59 PM

By the end of Week 9 (Module 8) students will turn in a rough draft of their final paper of a minimum of 2000 words. This draft should include full citations for key literature being used in the paper project.

Rough Draft points will be assessed by Friday March 22nd at 11:59 pm.

D. Final Paper (80 points)

DUE SATURDAY APRIL 27TH BY 11:59 PM

After the completion of all course modules the final paper will be due on the last class day of the semester. Points for the Final Paper will be assessed by the time that final grades are due.
