This course traces the process by which two kingdoms in southwest Europe developed the first global empire on which the sun never set, and how that great empire fell victim to decay and decline. Beginning with the marriage of the "Catholic Monarchs" (Ferdinand and Isabella) in 1469, this course covers the union of the Crowns of Castile and Aragon, the intertwining of the destiny of the Spanish kingdoms and the Holy Roman Empire, the Spanish conquest of the Americas, the birth of a golden age of literature and drama, Mediterranean conflict with the Ottoman Empire, and the extension of maritime trade across the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

In the course of engaging with these topics, we will consider the cultural, religious, political, and economic factors that contextualized the history of the period. At various moments, our telescopic lens will fix upon a variety of themes: the relationships among Christians, Muslims, and Jews in the Iberian Peninsula; early modern debates about the so-called "destruction of the Indies"; the Spanish Crown's role as the protector of Catholicism during the Reformation, and the distinct evolution of a Spanish honor culture.
Required Texts:

additional readings assigned online or through CANVAS

Course Reserves: When possible, one copy of “Required Texts” listed above will be available at Library Desk for consultation.

Course goals:

(1) Students will develop an understanding of how the destiny of a number of Iberian kingdoms became intertwined, and of the internal and external factors that gradually led to the establishment of a durable “Spanish” political unit.

(2) Students will learn to read primary texts in a critical fashion, with an eye to understanding how and why those texts were produced, and the formulas that determined the character of their content.

(3) Students will improve their writing and communication skills, by writing short and medium-length essays that ask historical questions and muster evidence from primary sources to support their theses. All papers will be graded and returned with feedback so as to encourage better performance on future papers.

Attendance and Participation: Attendance at lectures and discussions is mandatory. Fridays (unless otherwise noted) will be devoted to discussion of the week’s readings. Please attend section having read the week’s materials and bring a copy with you. Spotty attendance, unpreparedness, or failure to bring readings to discussion section will certainly lower your grade and poor attendance is grounds for failing the course; excellent attendance and especially energetic and informed participation will raise final grades.

Excused Absences: One absence will automatically be excused without question. That said, students who will not be able to take an exam at the scheduled time or need an extension of the due date for a paper must provide medical documentation of their condition at the time. The same holds true for any course meetings beyond the first that students might miss because of extended illness. Students who have other conflicts that will prevent them from being able to complete an assignment on time or who will incur absences due to UF-sanctioned activities (such as participation in UF teams, etc.) must notify the professor in advance.
Reading Responses: Over the semester, you will complete two Reading Responses. These assignments concern what we call “Secondary literature,” that is to say, articles or books in which historians use historical sources to write about the past. In roughly 600-700 words (2 double-spaced pages), you should identify the general theme or themes that unite the readings as well as any particular arguments that might distinguish them.

Source Analysis: At two points, you will be asked to analyze the documentation from one of the legal cases you have read that week. In roughly 600-700 words (2 double-spaced pages), you should be prepared to answer these questions: 1) Of what kind of crime was the defendant accused? 2) What procedures did the Inquisitors follow? 3) Which contemporary objectives of the Inquisition can be identified in the process? 4) What was the surrounding social context in Spain? 5) Did any line of questioning or piece of testimony catch your eye? Why did you find it interesting?

Essay
For your essay, due March 15th, you will receive a question that requires you to read and think through a set of readings and formulate a thesis. The length should be 1800 words (roughly 5-6 pages). Your essay should not be a summary of the readings or recapitulations of historical events (although you might need to include brief recaps as part of your argument). It should rely heavily upon analysis of the primary sources that you have discussed in your weekly section meetings.

Midterm and Final Exams:
- These may include fill-in-the-blanks with key terms, short answers, passage identifications, and short essays.
- They will include both lecture material and material from assigned readings.
