INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH

Faculty Affiliate, European Studies Center, University of Florida.

Developed and taught upper-level undergraduate course on European Population Issues in European Union certificate program. Participated in faculty training seminars on the EU (2003) at University of Florida and in Brussels.

Cross-national Analyses of European and World Values Surveys: Attitudes about Fertility, Gender, and Immigration

Koropecyj-Cox, Tanya, Alin M. Ceobanu, and Zeynep Copur (Hacettepe University, Ankara, Turkey). Analyzed data from 26 countries on attitudes about childlessness. Presented at the European Population Conference, Vienna, Austria, September 2010.

Developing as a multi-year long-term project. This cross-national research will examine the intersections of pronatalism, egalitarian gender attitudes, and the rise of pro-right nativism in Europe. We are using data on attitudes in the European Values Surveys from 1999-2004 and 2008. We are also working with graduate students to analyze multiple waves of U.S. General Social Surveys and cross-national data (International Social Survey Programme).

Cross-national Research on Attitudes about Childbearing, Family, and Gender

Koropecyj-Cox, Tanya and Zeynep Copur (Hacettepe University, Ankara, Turkey). "University Students' Perceptions of Childless Couples and Parents in Ankara, Turkey." Used data collected by Dr. Copur from 850 university students in Ankara, with a research design developed by Tanya Koropecyj-Cox and comparing Turkish data with 1,200 surveys completed by university students in Florida. Visited Family & Consumer Sciences Department, Hacettepe University, in September 2010.

This project includes Dr. Yoshimi Kataoka and Dr. Takashi Fukino of Shimane University, Shimane, Japan. In Fall 2012, Dr. Kataoka presented our collaborative research paper, entitled, "International Comparative Study on the Structure of Attitudes Toward Gender Role Norms" at the International Congress of Family and Consumer Science in Antalya, Turkey. In Summer 2013, Drs. Kataoka and Fukino received funding from the Japanese government for a multi-year study (2013-2016), comparing attitudes about gender norms in the U.S., Turkey, and Japan (funded travel to Japan in Summer 2014). New data were collected at each site in 2015-2016, with on-going data analyses and writing.

Cross-national Comparisons of Attitudes about Migration and Population Aging in Europe.

Ceobanu, Alin M., & Tanya Koropecyj-Cox. "Does Europe Need Newcomers? A Cross-Country Analysis of Public Views toward the Demographic Impact of Immigrants." Analyses of comparable

Euro-Barometer (2006) data from 26 countries. Presented at European Population Conference, Vienna, Austria, September 2010.

Cross-national Collaborative Research on Childlessness and Aging

Koropecyj-Cox, Tanya & Vaughn Call (Brigham Young University). "Characteristics of Childless Persons and Parents: Cross-National Comparisons." Published in Special Issue of Journal of Family Issues, entitled, "Childless Older Adults: Cross National Comparisons." Special Issue Editors: Pearl Dykstra (Netherlands Institute for Demographic Research - NIDI) & Gunhild Hagestad (Norway).

Research Demographer collaborated with Emily Agree (Johns Hopkins University) and Nikolai Botev (U.N. ECE Population Activities Unit). Cross-national, comparative study of living arrangements of childless or unmarried elderly in Estonia, Latvia, Czech Republic, Bulgaria, and Romania.

Presented and participated in International Conference on the Demography of Aging in Europe, sponsored by U.N. Economic Commission for Europe, Sion, Switzerland (December 1999) and 17th World Congress of Gerontology, International Association for Gerontology, Vancouver, BC, Canada (July 2001).

- Pilot study, "Aging, Kin, and Context: The Case of Eastern Europe," funded by the University of Florida College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. (2001-2002; $5,000 direct).

Research Sociologist with Institute of Gerontology of the Health Ministry of Ukraine.

Conducted research on health and social status of the elderly in Western Ukraine, July 1993. Funded by Boettner Institute for Financial Gerontology, University of Pennsylvania.
