DESCRIPTION
This course is a core seminar required for the Religion and Nature concentration within the Ph.D. program in the Department of Religion. It is also open to graduate students from other subfields in religion and from other departments, as long as they have some background in environmental studies, environmental philosophy, or religion and nature.

Readings and discussions will explore classic and contemporary theoretical approaches and models in environmental ethics, as well as the possibilities of teaching, applying, and critiquing these approaches. Some of the approaches and topics covered will include land ethics, theistic and non-theistic religious ethics, postmodernist critiques, evolutionary and ecological theory, ecofeminism, social ecology, bioregionalism, and others. Special attention will be paid to thinkers and debates within the discipline of religious studies, although readings will also come from philosophy, anthropology, environmental studies, education, ecology, and related fields.

Throughout the class, we will pay attention not only to theoretical issues but also to the real-world implications and applications of ethical theories. Thus we will explore areas such as environmental education, ecological restoration, and sustainable resource consumption, in addition to philosophically-oriented topics and readings. We will also discuss the process of teaching environmental ethics, at both university and secondary levels, in both practical and theoretical dimensions.

POLICIES, RULES, AND RESOURCES
1. Attendance and reading: This is a graduate seminar. I expect you to attend all meetings of the class, barring extraordinary circumstances, and to arrive on time and prepared to discuss the reading at each and every class meeting.

2. Handing in Assignments: Place all papers in my mailbox in the Religion Department, 107 Anderson Hall. DO NOT slip them under the door or leave them on the door of my office, the main department office, or the teaching assistant’s office. Please also keep a dated electronic copy of all your papers.

3. Late or Make-Up Assignments: You may receive an extension on an assignment only in extraordinary circumstances and with prior approval from the instructor. If an extension is not granted, the assignment will be marked down ½ grade (e.g., from B+ to B) for each day late.

4. Completion of All Assignments: You must complete all written and oral assignments and fulfill the requirement for class participation in order to pass the course. I will not average a grade that is missing for any assignment or requirement.

5. Common Courtesy: Cell phones and other electronic devices must be turned off during class. Students who receive or make calls during class will be asked to leave. You may take notes on a laptop computer or other device, although I may ask you to turn off the computer.

6. Honor Code: On all work submitted for credit by students at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied: “On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment.” The university specifically prohibits cheating, plagiarism, misrepresentation, bribery, conspiracy, and fabrication. For more information about the definition of these terms and other aspects of the Honesty Guidelines, see http://www.chem.ufl.edu/~itl/honor.html. Any student demonstrated to have cheated, plagiarized, or otherwise violated the Honor Code in any assignment for this course will fail the course. In addition, violations of the Academic Honesty Guidelines shall result in judicial action and the sanctions listed in paragraph XI of the Student Conduct Code.

7. Accommodation for Disabilities: Students requesting classroom accommodation must first register with the Dean of Students Office. The Dean of Students Office will provide documentation to the student, who must then provide this documentation to the Instructor when requesting accommodation.
