Course Description:
The main objective of this graduate seminar will be to critically examine some of the major contemporary approaches to the study of Islam and Muslim societies in their complexity and diversity. After considering how classical social theory has been applied and used in the study of Islam and Muslim societies, we will focus most of our attention on developments in recent scholarship in Islamic studies, history, and anthropology that one might characterize as post-Orientalist in orientation. Through the close reading of texts in which various contemporary theoretical models and assumptions have been applied to different thematic areas, including the study of Islamic education, intellectual traditions, law, Islamic religious practice, religious encounters, politics, and public life more generally, we will assess such approaches to the study and understanding of Islam and Muslim societies past and present.

Course Objectives:
1. To map out the contemporary academic field of the study of Islam and Muslim societies;
2. To identify and critically assess different theoretical approaches and assumptions in the study of Islam and Muslim societies;
3. To provide experience in the writing and presentation of critical commentary on the field of Islam and Muslim societies.

Requirements and Format:
The seminar is organized around class discussions based on the weekly assigned readings. We will usually read a monograph or several articles per week. Since this is a small advanced seminar, active and engaged participation is required. Students will make presentations and help to lead discussions.

Students will write 8 critical commentary papers (350-500 words) on the readings and in consultation with the instructor develop a specific program of writing related to their particular interests and needs. One option is to write a research paper around a theme related to the course. Another option is to negotiate with the instructor a plan of work that gets one closer to preliminary examination preparation.

In addition to the critical commentary papers and participation in the seminar discussions, students will meet at least once with the instructor, make oral presentations, write a final paper/writing assignment proposal, and workshop the paper/writing assignment proposal during the seminar.
Method of Evaluation:
- Regular, active participation in seminar discussions (15% of the final grade)
- Class presentations (10%) and leading of discussions (10%)
- Critical commentary papers on readings: 8 papers (350-500 words each) (25%)
- Research paper (6,000 to 7,500 words) or other agreed-upon written work (40%)

Final grades will be computed on this scale: A = 94-100%; A- = 90-93%; B+ = 87-89%; B = 84-86%; B- = 80-83%; C+ = 77-79%; C = 74-76%; C- = 70-73%; D+ = 67-69%; D = 64-66%; D- = 60-63%; F = <60%
