Office Hours: Thursdays: 2:30-4:00 and 5:00-6:00, and by appointment

Description: This course is a capstone seminar for religion majors. Our aim is to engage in both the field of religious studies and important religious issues in the larger society. This semester our course will compare and contrast how different scholars of American religion have recently conceived of “religious experience” (defined with terms such as spirituality, mysticism, and fanaticism) and its relationship to history and contemporary society.

Required Texts:
Courtney Bender, The New Metaphysicals
Lincoln Mullen, The Chance of Salvation: A History of Conversion in America
Robert Orsi, History and Presence
David Watt, Anti-Fundamentalism

Grading:
Attendance and participation: 20%
Leading class discussion 15%
In-class essays 30%
Midterm 15%
Take-home final 20%

Attendance & Participation: This grade is meant to encourage you to become a more thoughtful and engaged seminar participant. If you attend every class and participate in discussion throughout the class period – answering questions, responding to the comments of your classmates, and contributing your own insights and questions to our conversation – you will receive the full 20/20 points, plus extra credit for maintaining perfect attendance. If you attend every class, but speak only occasionally and/or are clearly focused on things besides discussion, such as the Internet or your cellphone, you will likely receive a grade closer to a 13/20. Staying focused on discussion, taking notes, and following-up on classmates’ comments, are excellent ways to improve this grade. Before the midterm, you will receive a provisional A&P grade to give you an idea of your standing, with time to improve. (Think of this as training for every work “team” in which you will take part – employers and colleagues will hold you in higher regard if you are an energetic contributor. Learning not to be a passive member of a group conversation is an important skill for your career and your relationships.)
Occasionally, class will begin with a very short writing exercise based on the reading – this is part of your P&A grade and it will not be a problem if you’ve done the reading.

For the in-class essays, you will be given the question(s) in advance, and you are allowed to bring one notecard of notes to class to write your essays. A higher level of clarity of ideas and writing is expected than if this were a typical in-class essay. Length of essays is not as important to your grade as the quality of the content.

Leading class discussion: At the beginning of the semester, you will choose a reading for which you will be responsible. You are free to organize your presentation as you like: you may choose to take the class through some main points and/or provide a handout, and/or raise discussion questions. Keep in mind that you want to keep discussion flowing, so if you do provide us with questions, have some of your own answers on-hand, in case you encounter silence from the group 😊.

The midterm and final are based on both the readings and our class discussions.

Caveats and additional information

Syllabus: Depending on time constraints and other factors, the instructor may alter the syllabus during the semester. Students will be given notice of such alterations.

Requirements for class attendance and make-up exams, assignments, and other work in this course are consistent with university policies that can be found at: https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/attendance.

For grading policies, please see: https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/grades.aspx

Students with disabilities requesting accommodations should first register with the Disability Resource Center (352-392-8565, www.dso.ufl.edu/drc/) by providing appropriate documentation. Once registered, students will receive an accommodation letter that must be presented to the instructor when requesting accommodation. Students with disabilities should follow this procedure as early as possible in the semester.

UF students are bound by The Honor Pledge, which states, “We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honor and integrity by abiding by the Honor Code. On all work submitted for credit by students at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied: “On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment.” The Honor Code (http://www.dso.ufl.edu/sccr/process/student-conduct-honorcode/) specifies a number of behaviors that are in violation of this code and the possible sanctions. Furthermore, you are obligated to report any condition that facilitates academic misconduct to appropriate personnel.
